Report by: ScoutBridge Scouting Department

Nils Taddesse is a technical and composed central midfielder currently playing for IFK Haninge in the P17 Allsvenskan. Despite his young age, he displays a mature understanding of the game, showing confidence and control in possession against strong opposition.

Taddesse stands out for his ability to operate effectively in tight areas. He uses his first touch and close control to navigate pressure and maintain the rhythm of play. When given space, he is confident driving the ball forward, carrying possession through midfield lines and creating openings for teammates. His passing range and timing of through balls are key aspects of his game, and he often looks to progress play with intention rather than playing safe.

In terms of tactical flexibility, Taddesse can play in several midfield roles. As a No. 6, he offers composure and control in buildup, helping his team transition smoothly from defense to attack. As a No. 8, he connects play between lines, supporting both phases with good movement and positioning. He can also fill a No. 10 role, using his awareness and short passing to link with forwards. His intelligence allows him to adapt well depending on the team's tactical approach.

He also contributes off the ball, showing good awareness in pressing and recovery moments. While not overly physical, he competes with determination and reads the game well to intercept or block passing lanes. Physically, he would benefit from adding strength, especially in his upper body, to hold off challenges more effectively and sustain duels at higher levels.

Overall, Taddesse is a well-rounded and intelligent midfielder with notable technical quality and strong ball-handling skills. He performs well for his level, showing consistency and maturity in decision-making. With continued physical development and experience, he has the potential to become a reliable and impactful player at higher academy or early senior level in the coming years.
