

Scouting Report:

Gustav Rosèn

Gustav Rosèn (born 2005) is an explosive and dynamic wide player currently representing Västra Frölunda IF, one of Sweden's most historic clubs. He combines exceptional pace with an outstanding high-intensity engine, allowing him to sustain maximum effort for the full 90 minutes. His speed and stamina make him one of the most mobile players on the pitch, capable of matching or outpacing almost any opponent. Rosèn plays with a highly aggressive mindset both offensively and defensively. In attack, he is constantly on the move, stretching the pitch, offering width, and providing dangerous options for crosses or quick combinations with midfielders. He thrives in transition and is quick to get forward, making him a valuable asset in systems such as a 3-5-2, where his qualities as a wingback shine, or in a 4-3-3, where he can operate effectively along the flank.

Defensively, Rosèn is eager to close down space and engage opponents, showing commitment in 1v1 duels and proving strong in aerial battles despite his primary role as a wide player. His intensity and work rate allow him to contribute in both halves of the pitch, creating constant problems for the opposition. He is also an intelligent link player, combining well with midfielders to progress the ball and maintain attacking momentum.

To reach his full potential, Rosèn should focus on refining his defensive positioning and decision-making, particularly when operating deep in his own half. At times, his aggressive nature can lead to over-commitment, resulting in free-kicks or leaving space behind. Addressing these aspects will be key in his development.

With his physical attributes, competitive mentality, and willingness to work relentlessly for the team, Gustav Rosèn has the raw qualities to progress to the highest levels of Swedish football. With the right guidance and continued development, he has every chance of becoming a future Allsvenskan player in the next couple of years.
