EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Simon Zupancic is an experienced goalkeeper returning to Sweden after professional experience in Iceland. His profile is defined by an excellent combination of aerial dominance, strong 1v1 reflexes, and confident distribution. At 196 cm, he is physically imposing and is a naturally vocal leader who brings an immediate command presence to the defensive unit.

TECHNICAL & TACTICAL ANALYSIS

AERIAL COMMAND & HANDLING

Zupancic is really strong in the air due to his height and confident decision-making. He is proficient in high traffic, demonstrating the ability to box the ball out strongly from dangerous areas as well as pick crosses directly out of the air.

DISTRIBUTION & BALL PLAYING

He is a calm and intelligent distributor, crucial for initiating buildup play. His passes calmly to the number 6, wingbacks, or central backs, helping to maintain possession and structure in the first phase of play. He is also great in dipping the ball in to the number 9 when the striker drops deeper, showing vision to bypass the midfield press and turn defense into attack instantly.

SHOT-STOPPING & REFLEXES

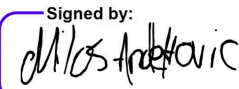

His shot-stopping ability, particularly in critical moments, is a major asset. One of his main strengths is his reflexes in 1v1 where he makes great saves. He is quick to the ground for a tall keeper, allowing him to cover low shots effectively.

MENTALITY & LEADERSHIP

Zupancic is a true leader on the pitch. He is really vocal, constantly communicating with his defense, organizing the back line, and setting expectations. This experience and vocal nature provide a vital commanding influence on the entire team structure.

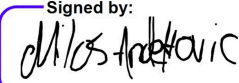

PROJECTION & POTENTIAL

Simon Zupancic projects as an immediate and reliable starting goalkeeper at the Ettan level (similar to his prior experience at FC Trollhättan). His experience, aerial ability, and leadership make him a highly
